We have concerns over the inclusion of the words "minimum" and "at least", for addressing the housing requirement. Appeal decisions have time and again worked against allocation sites within NDPs that have "at least" in their policies. Where is the evidence that it is needed for Henley-on-Thames? Our town has more than delivered against our Core Strategy allocations and we did not even include a windfall allowance as part of our supply. The rapid delivery in market and affordable housing on our Core Strategy allocation sites has been as a result of the certainty our plan provided for in terms of a fixed number of homes on individual sites and as a collective target. Having exact figures to work to ensured that developers did not waste months submitting applications/appeals to intensify their sites, providing for adequate reserve sites should any allocation site fail will build in sufficient resilience; by giving Henley the confidence that any number we propose will prevent intensification on our identified allocations sites we will be more likely to increase our housing allocations to provide for very local needs.

We do not agree with the deletion of the following wording - i) are in accordance with the Joint Henley-on-Thames and Harpsden Neighbourhood Development Plan or any subsequent made replacement of that Plan. As we consider that this would dilute the importance of the Neighbourhood Plan.
